Getting to Know... Danielle Previ

By Ira C. Hock, MC Editor

Danielle Previ is a 17 year old deaf student mainstreamed in a hearing high school. She is on the varsity lacrosse team. I was introduced to her via e-mail through a member of the community.

Q. Danielle, it is a pleasure to interview a young deaf student who can be a role model for others. Where do you attend high school?

A. I attend Mountain Lakes High School in Mountain Lakes, New Jersey. I recently transferred there for my junior and senior years from Shawnee High School in Medford, New Jersey.

Q. Did you always go to mainstreamed classes, or did you ever attend specific programs for students who are deaf?

A. I moved to Mountain Lakes High School so I could have a better support system. The program is amazing, and it helped me a lot. Mountain Lakes High School has a program for the deaf and is composed of about 45 deaf students.

Q. What type of accommodations do you utilize - sign language interpreters, captioning, c-print, assistive listening devices?

A. I use interpreters for all my classes. For one specific class that contains a lot of lecture, I used c-print.

Q. What challenges have you had to overcome with your hearing loss?

A. I have faced many challenges in my life that include communication barriers. I could socialize with the hearing kids by reading lips and teaching my hearing friends sign language, but it was not always easy. Since I have been mainstreamed in school, I was at a disadvantage. I worked hard to keep up with the class, and I would not let myself be treated differently from the hearing students.

Q. So, I hear you are quite a lacrosse star...smile....tell us about it.

A. I have been playing lacrosse since I was in 6th grade. From the moment I started playing, I fell in love with it and decided to keep practicing to improve my skills. Now, I am in a starting position called center. It is a position where you need to hear the whistle to start the game, but I don't let that stop me, I just do it a different way. I look at the referee instead of hearing the whistle. I have won some awards such as North Jersey Second All-Division Team. I really enjoy playing with the girls and simply having fun playing the sport.

Q. How are you able to keep up with the demands of the lacrosse team, and your academic life?

A. That is hard...trying to balance two things that are important to me in my high school career. The lacrosse team practices almost daily, except for Sundays, and practices end between 5:30 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. When practice ends, I go home and start my homework as soon as possible. Sometimes I won't get all of it done, but I do my best. To be honest, during lacrosse, I eat sleep and breathe lacrosse.

Sometimes that affects my grade just a little bit, but I am able to handle it.

Q. Have you begun plans for college?

A. I have been in contact with some colleges that I am interested in, and I'm also playing in tournaments, so colleges come and see me play.

Q. When you are not playing lacrosse or studying, what type of hobbies do you enjoy?

A. I enjoy spending time with friends. I made a lot of really close friends during my first year at MLHS. I love visiting my family who are in South Jersey since I moved to North Jersey with my dad this year.

Q. Many young deaf students must struggle through school. Can you offer any advice to them?

A. Keep your self confidence up!
Don't let anybody or anything bother you or get into your way of succeeding. Don't be afraid to be different from the others and just be yourself. If you ever have a bad day because of something that relates to your deafness, just put it behind you. There's always tomorrow.

Editor's Note: The MC welcomes your suggestions for interviews which may interest our readers. Feel free to submit your ideas to; ira.hock@dhs.state.nj.us

American Sign Language Story Hours Promote English Literacy for Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children

he New Jersey Library for the Blind and Handicapped (NJLBH), held its monthly

Children's American Sign Language
(ASL) Story
Hour on June
7. Department of Community Affairs
Commissioner
Susan Bass Levin read the humorous book The Perfect Pet by

award-winning New Jersey author Margie Palatini, illustrated by Bruce Whatley.

Following Commissioner Levin's presentation, Rich Hoffman, a naturalist with the Somerset County Park Commission Environmental Education Center, presented a 20minute program on insects, complete with a tantalizing array of live bugs, and fascinated his audience with both living and preserved insects and reptiles, including a giant tarantula, hissing cockroaches, and a gecko. The children and adults ran a gamut of emotions from trepidation to pleasure. Braver audience members enjoyed petting the non-poisonous specimens.

As always, certified therapy dogs from the Kindred Souls Canine Center joined the children for the Story Hour. In conclusion, nine second and third grade Katzenbach students signed to the audience, telling which dog is their favorite therapy dog and why. Each showed an original drawing of his or her favorite dog. Talking about their favorite dog was not only fun, but reinforced literacy skills by integrating composition and art.

With over 90 people present, the story hour was a huge success.

Commissioner Levin was a captivating storyteller, and Mr. Hoffman's presentation and audience interaction was fascinating. Since this was the last story hour until fall, all children received gifts. Their teachers were acknowledged and given certificates and gifts. A few students of Marie H. Katzenbach school signed to the audience that they wanted to thank the Library for the Blind and Handicapped for making this happen and are really looking forward to future story hours in Fall 2005. As a special treat, NJLBH served blue raspberry frozen drinks. The children enjoyed showing their blue tongues afterwards!

Story hours will resume in October 2005 and run through June 2006.

Signed by ASL interpreters provided by the N.J. Division of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, and accompanied by a PowerPoint presentation illustrating each page along with the reader, NJLBH's monthly story hours enable Deaf and Hard of Hearing children to enjoy simultaneously ASL and English versions of books, enhancing English literacy skills.

First through third grade students from the Marie H. Katzenbach School (MKSD) for the Deaf attend the story hour. Certified therapy dogs and their volunteer owners from the Kindred Souls Canine Center join the children at each monthly story hour, and owner and trainer Pete Campione teaches the children a new hand signal each month. The dogs love interacting with the children attending the story hour.

Home-schooled hearing children and students from three classes at the Hunterdon County ESC School in Lambertville also attend ASL story hour. In two of the classes, the students range in age from 16 to 21, have multiple disabilities, and use sign language as part of their daily routine. Some students use sign language as their means of

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES PO Box 700 TRENTON, NJ 08625-0700

RICHARD J. CODEY Acting Governor JAMES M. DAVY Commissioner

July 25, 2005

Dear Friend,

I have good news for you!

I mentioned in a letter last month that your prescription drug coverage would change January 1, 2006 due to the new federal Medicare Part D Program. The new federal Medicare Part D Program creates a new prescription drug benefit through Medicare and requires Medicaid dual-eligibles, such as yourself, to pay co-payments for your prescription drugs. However, thanks to the hard work of Acting Governor Richard J. Codey and the Legislature, the state Medicaid program will now cover the new co-payments for your prescription drugs.

As a dual-cligible New Jerseyan who receives health care benefits through both Medicare and Medicaid, the new law will provide you with prescription drug coverage through the Medicare program. Medicare requires a co-pay of $3 for every brand name drug and $1 for every generic drug. But you will not have to pay this. You will continue to receive your prescriptions free of charge.

In October, the Medicare program will send you a letter telling you which particular prescription drug program you can use and any new procedures or rules you must follow. If you do not like the Medicare prescription drug plan assigned to you, you will have many opportunities to switch. Also, there are some medications that Medicare doesn't cover so the state Medicaid program will continue to pay for these. We will notify your case managers, pharmacies, physicians and other health care providers about these changes.

Please note that for the next few months, the way you receive your prescription drugs will not change. I will send you another letter in the fall to provide you with some additional tips for a smooth transition into the Medicare drug benefit.

Until then, keep all the letters you receive on the subject of the "Medicare Modernization Act" and your prescription drugs until the program starts in January. If you don't understand the upcoming change, find someone who can help you, or call these toll free hotlines: Medicare at 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) or Medicaid at 1-800-356-1561.

I am committed to making this transition easy for you. My staff and I are here to make sure you continue to receive the drugs you need to improve your quality of life.

Sincerely,

James M. Davy

communication in conjunction with assistive technology devices. The other class has students aged 10 to13 who have learning disabilities. They are learning sign language in their class through their Speech Therapist and have used it as an educational tool, a means to learn about other people, and as a second language.

Freedom Scientific Offers Suite of New Deaf-Blind Solutions

reedom Scientific announced several new deaf-blind solutions based on its popular PAC MateTM BX and QX series accessible Pocket PCs. Deaf-blind PAC Mate users will now be able to communicate more effectively with friends and colleagues in the classroom, over the Internet, via telephone, and face-to-face using refreshable braille displays and messaging and TTY software.

First, the upcoming PAC Mate 3.0 release has added support for AOL® Instant MessengerTM (AIM®).

"MSN Messenger has been available on the PAC Mate in earlier releases and is great for deaf-blind users holding conversations long distance over the Internet or within any room with a wireless Internet connection," said Brad Davis, Vice President of Freedom Scientific. "With the telephone services for the deaf that Hamilton Internet Protocol (HIP) RelayTM services using AOL Instant Messenger can provide, we paid particular attention in Release 3.0 to ensure that all AIM functions are fully accessible using braille only."

Now deaf-blind users have full access to AIM using a PAC Mate with a braille display, including message review and management of the Buddy List, so that they can contact the HIP Relay service to make TDD relay calls right over the Internet to anyone with a telephone. AIM 2.0 can be downloaded from the Web and installed on the PAC Mate. Links to compatible downloads are listed at www.pacmategear.com.

Second, to support deaf-blind users making direct telephone calls, Freedom Scientific announced its new FSTTY package, which includes a TTY modem and a new software application that can be used with a PAC Mate BX or QX and a 20-cell or 40-cell braille display to place and receive telephone calls. FSTTY contains several features that make TTY calls more efficient than ever before:

- * Easily copy text from PAC Mate files or from the Contacts list into an active TTY call and send it to the other party.
- * Easily copy text from a call into other PAC Mate files.
- * Save a record of your TTY call to a file for later reference.

The FSTTY package is available now from Freedom Scientific for $1,200. When combined with a PAC Mate BX or QX with a 20-cell braille display, this yields a total solution price of $4,995, about $1,000 less than the closest competitive TTY solution for the deaf-blind. The total solution including 40 cells of braille is priced at $6,795.

Last, Freedom Scientific announced that it will round out its deaf-blind offerings with FSCommunicator, a portable solution that will provide instant face-to-face communication between a deaf-blind user and another person - featuring braille output for the deaf-blind user and visual output for the other person. FSCommunicator will be available by year-end. For more information, please contact Freedom Scientific at 800-444-4443 Voice or 727-803-8000 Voice, or visit the Freedom Scientific Web site, www.FreedomScientific.com.
